

This is a mango tree that grown up in my grand parents house. I don't exactly know how old it is, but me^{thing} is for sure it was already there when I was 5 years old. It brought us a lot of memories w/ my cousins and family. It stands by a river that we used to swim and play. Grand parents are nearby that is why we used to have a night gathering under the moonlight under the shadow of the mango tree. As for me, I love the most is the swing.

~~This~~ is Gema, she is Japan, she is both warm and cold. And like people from Japan she is nice and polite.

As we sat in front a hand made barbeque grill,
I remember my brother sharing his stories

I remember my brother fall from the mango tree bruised and bloodied nose staring at me.
I feel like if the world stop spinning knowing what awaits us at home. My father is a disciplinarian.
As expected cold & piercing eyes is waiting for us together at the Mr. Can.

"Mommy, my birthday is coming, are you coming back home to celebrate w/ me. asked Althea. Expected to her mother across the ocean.
Next summer will be her 18th b-day. She is her only flower among the 5 five children. She is the youngest as well. She leaves her when she was only one year old and she never celebrated her birthday with her due to the nature of her work. Now she wanted to surprise her. She by you bought her ticket for that cruise.*
I can't promise you, by she answered. But I'm sure I have a beautiful gift for you.
